bill.

Hawley of Connecticut followed in opposition to the bill, attacking especially its provision against Chinese naturalization and sundry penalty features, which he likened to the machinery of the fugitive slave law.

Edmunds moved to substitute for the fifteenth section the following: "That the words 'Chinese laberers,' wherever used in this Act, shall be construed to include persons who are usually engaged in manual labor."

Farley took the floor in opposition to the amendment, and after showing that Chinese skilled labor is precisely the kind which is most injurious to our interests, he became engaged in a long collequy with Dawes about the labor experiment of Chinese in Massachusetts, and at 4 o'clock yielded to a motion chusetts, and at 4 o'clock yielded to a motion. chusetts, and at 4 o'clock yielded to a motion made by Edmunds for an executive session,

WASHINGTON, April 26th.-The general ex-WASHINGTON, April 26th.—The general expectations that the Senate would reach a vote on the Chinese bill this afternoon failed of fulfillment, partly because Senators Slater and Hawley made longer speeches than were looked for, but mainly on account of the illness of a daughter of Senator Edmunds, which required him to leave the Capitol about 4 o'clock, and induced the friends of the bill to allow it to go over until to-morrow.

The Indiana State Senate. the bill to allow it to go over until to morrow, in order to afford him an opportunity to participate in the closing discussion. It was understood also that he desires to reply specifically to some of Hawley's criticisms upon the machinery of the bill, which as a member of the Foreign Relations Committee he largely assisted in framing, and which he is fully prepared to defend. The debate to-day was not exciting, nor for the most part especially interesting.

The Shipherd Inquiry-Continuation of Blaine's Testimony.

WASHINGTON, April 26th.—Blaine said to the committee this morning that he had examined the diary of the late President in which he had been in the habit fer years of keeping a minute account of his deliver trans-WASHINGTON, April 26th .- Blaine said to ruvian Company mentioned. Neither does his private Secretary remember ever having heard him mention them.

THE "FOREIGN POLICY" MATTER. The Chairman-I would inquire if any of the important dispatches pertaining to South American affairs were prepared during Presi-lished, will show-as that which has been already published does show—that there was no decisive action whatever taken during the President's illness, in regard to any other field where the diplomacy of the Administration was called into action. There was posover, and talked over several times, between myself and the President before his assassination, and I knew that in what I did I was carrying out, with great explicitness, the views of the President. In order to illustrate this question, I desire to make a state-THAT CIRCULAR LETTER. On the 24th of June, 1881, the State Department issued a circular letter to our Ministers in Europe touching the policy of the canal. That letter, being addressed to all the Governments of Europe, did not afford scope for a discussion of the obstacle which lay in the plan of our policy, which was the Clay-ton-Bulwer treaty. That related especially to England, so it was not deemed wise or proper to make any allusion to it in the circular letter to all the other powers as well as England, but practically both papers were prepared at the same time. The one relating to the Clayton-Bulwer treaty was blocked out, and so far blocked out that the President and myself had gone over the points to be presented, and the notes were full upon it. But that paper, when the President was shot, was laid aside and never withdrawn from its pigeon-hole until President Arthur had been thirty or forty days in the exercise of the Presidency, and was sent weeks afterwards by reason of the President's authority to do it. I give that as an illustration of the very important part which I took in the Peruvian and South American question, and which is that no important action was taken upon any material point whatever without the direc-tions and knowledge of one or the other of the two Presidents. I want to make that statement as brief as language can make it. GARFIELD'S VIEWS. In explanation of President Garfield's views upon the subject, Blaine said: "President Garfield, in conversation with me, said Mr. Lincoln directed Secretary Seward to bring all foreign dispatches to him and not to the Cabinet unless he desired it."

instructions which were given to Trescott, which he read, and pointed out the corrections which had been made by the President. Some of them were at his (Blaine's) suggestion. He commented upon the corrections and their merits and demerits. He added: "I do not by any means find fault with the President for changing his mind, but this is the original draft of the instructions to which President Arthur gave his assent, and which, following precedents, I kept. I desire to state most solemnly that the assumption that I ever interpolated a line or a syllable in a dispatch after it was agreed to by the President is as false a lie as that which was circulated over the country that I was during the President's sickness blocking out a foreign pelicy of my own."

At this point Belmont proceeded to pro pound a series of prepared questions, mainly directed to inquire into the policy of the De-partment in the Chile-Peruvian trouble and the instructions given to Trescott. The witness, in reply to a question, stated that he had never made an examination into the merits of the Cochet-Landreau claims. He had never considered the Landreau claim as readjudicated.

REPARTEE AND RETORTS. Belmont then propounded a series of questions in regard to the terms "good offices" or "officially," and a somewhat lively tilt ensued between the examiner and the witness, which was finally brought to a climax by or desire to badger him. aminer persisting in putting his own construc-tion upon the tenor of Blaine's dispatches, while the latter persistently insisted upon the Landreau claim, and that he should simply use his good offices to secure a hearing for Landreau in the Courts in Peru. "It was adventuresome enough," added Blaine,

"to ask a foreign Government to give an American a hearing in its Courts. The case was most fairly arbitrated, and the property has gone the way of the Old World. Eng-land has gobbled the guano, and a million tons of it is now advertised in London, worth probably $60,000,000."

AN ENGLISH WAR ON PERU. Blaine continued, with much earnestness "The English bondholders put up the war on Peru, and it was loot and booty. They make a mistake who speak of this war as a Chilean war. It was an English war on Peru, and I take the responsibility to so call it, and I humble citizen of a Government that hardly dares to be out over night, and my foreign policy, to quote the expression used, would have driven this country into war with Chile had it not been thwarted.' Why, it is believed all over Chile that the United States got out in time to save a thrashing; that her heighteeined Scarttery of State was just engine and horribly manufer the driving-wheels of the heighteeined Scarttery of State was just engine and horribly manufed and did in and lapsed into a continuous rattle of repar-tee and counter retort, which frequently con-vulsed the spectators with laughter, and left it a matter of some doubt which was the examiner and which the witness. Blaine asserted that neither the Landreau or Cochet claim had anything more to do

NEW YORK. Highest,

A Model Shoe Factory

One hundred years ago the only towns in the United States possessing Factories for the manufacture of BOOTS AND SHOES, in large quantities, were Lynn (Mass.), and Newark (N. J.) To-day, but few Northern towns of importance but have at least one Factory. A century ago all the work was done by hand; the process was slow, laborious, and naturally limited as to production. To-day, it would be an easy matter to shoe an army at the shortest notice. Improvements and patented machinery have so increased hand-power, that now a thousand cases of Boots and Shoes are daily made as easily as one pair was manufactured

Throughout the whole of the first half of this century, SOLID LEATHER WORK ONLY WAS MADE, as people generally were too old-fashioned in their views, and too conservative in their opinions to wear a counterfeit in place of the real make.

The advent of CHEAP GOODS dates from a comparatively recent period, and was caused by the financial depression which afflicted all sections of our land. Many dealers, not foreseeing how disastrous the result must eventually be, demanded of the Eastern manufacturers CHEAP GOODS AT LOW PRICES. The popular voice was obeyed, poor counterfeits flooded the Shoe Stores East, West, North and South. The Merchant made money temporarily; the people were fleeced, complaints became frequent, and while all desired to return to solid and fine goods, too many factories, managed by men who could make a worthless but good-looking shoe, had been put into operation.

Wise, indeed, was the policy pursued by the few who determined not to deceive the public, but, if possible, to give better value for the money expended. Among the Manufacturing Houses of the latter class, the firm of J. & T. COUSINS, of New York, stands among the foremost as a conspicuous example. Using the best material only, and warranting their goods in all particulars, they demanded a fair price for good work, and refused to depreciate the quality of their make in any particular.

The senior member of the firm has been a manufacturer of fine goods for the past thirty-four years-first in Vesey street, and afterward in Warren street, New York; then at Norwalk, Conn. A little over a year age, needing greater facilities for the manufacture of their stock, they took possession of the fine, double, seven-story brick building at Nos. 199 and 201 Grand street, New York. Here they are running what may well be denominated a "A MODEL SHOE FACTORY." In size, each floor covers an area of 50x72 feet. The machinery employed is the very best that can be found for the purposes intended, and is worth many thousands of dollars. In the basement, a 60 horse-power Corliss engine gives the necessary motion to the many hundred feet of shafting and belting requisite to speed the machinery. Fully 250 operatives are constantly busy on the finer grades of machine-made goods, and about two score additional employes devote their time exclusively to hand-made work of the best

It is also worthy of note, in this connection, that every article purchased for consumption is bought direct from the manufacturers, and if of foreign stock, from the accorded representatives of the maker in this country. Another point is that, even after purchase, the senior member personally examines and tests each skin, and none can be cut or put into use unless it contains his private mark. Only the very best goods are used: and to effect the grading for the various qualities of shoes, the examiner separates the purchases into the several necessary lots, one being, of course, composed entirely of rejects, viz: poor and imperfect

From 3 500 to 4,000 pairs are turned out, boxed, cased and shipped

As each size in length is made in several widths, it will not surprise the reader to know that one man is kept constantly at work making patterns only, for a single set requires, on the average, 190 pieces; and the number required for a complete set of any one style is about 1,150. The Messrs. Cousins have now on hand over 30,000 of these patterns, and every day adds to the number. Considering the fact that lasts are always wearing out, or new styles requires new sets, every change in style demands an outlay of several thousand dollars before a single pair of the particular new style can be put upon the market.

To enumerate all the machinery employed would but tire.

---IN THE----

SOLE LEATHER DEPARTMENT

A Knox machine does its work admirably, and soles are cut as rapidly as the operator can work the treadle; but great experience and judgment on his part are necessary to know just where to place the dies, so as to get only the solid and thick leather for the outsole, and to effect the greatest saving in the parts to be used for insoles, heel-pieces, etc. A leveling machine smooths the soles when cut, and a sole-molder presses them into the necessary shapes required.

THE CUTTING DEPARTMENT

Is admirably arranged, so that no sun can enter and prevent the workmen from discovering imperfections in the stock. This work is all done by hand, and requires the best of judgment, both to avoid waste and in the selection of the proper parts for vamps, etc. Other machines in this department are the counter-molder, heel-press, band-machine, weltstripper, sole stripper, etc. For the uniting of the soles to the uppers two sole-sewers and two tackers are in operation. -IN THE-

SEWERS' DEPARTMENT

We noticed about fifty Weed sewing machines, two headers and six button holers, all worked by the best operators possible to obtain. The processes of forming and attaching the heels is performed by two McKay & Burton heeling machines, after which they are scoured and partially blackened by a special scouring machine intended to remove the dust and smooth the edges. Further machines employed are edge-trimmers, sandpaperers, edge-setters, heel-burnishers, splitters, featherers, etc. But two years have gone by since all classes of goods were put up in dozens, that is a dozen pairs to a single pasteboard box. Fine-goods makers, appreciating the wear and tear on goods in transit when so packed, and the ill appearance caused by the constant taking out and replacing of goods from the shelves, adopted the practice of carefully packing each pair in a single box and separating the individual shoes of each pair by means of tissue paper. In the Cousins' Factory it requires goods to be thoroughly perfect in material, style, workmanship and finish to pass the general Reviewing Officer, and then an expert in packing does each pair up ready for shipment. By means of this careful handling

COUSINS' SHOES

Always look and are fresh, new, and show no signs of handling, whether just purchased or on the shelves for a considerable length of time.

MESSRS. WEINSTOCK & LUBIN Have perfected arrangements for the handling of the Cousins' shoes, and a large selection of styles in many widths are now on their shelves ready for inspection and sale. For beauty of finish and perfection of fit, according to the judgment of those who have worn them, they stand unrivalled. GENERAL NOTICES.

It can be operated with man power, and do a reasonable amount of work. It grinds or rolls the barley or corn, crushing it into fine meal, if so desired, or simply crack it. This cannot be done with the stone or roller, for the one grinds but cannot roll, and the other rolls but cannot grind; but my mill does both, either grinding or rolling. The prices range from One Hundred to Three Hundred Dollars. The small

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

A BEAUTIFUL SIGHT. -The lover of the terday. beautiful in nature can have his most exalted conceptions gratified just now by taking a view of a floral arbor in the garden of J. W. Armstrong, north side of O street, between Ninth and Tenth. It is a small and simple arbor, formed by training rose trees over a plain trellis to the top of the cottage porch, but the effect is one of the most charming and satisfying imaginable. There is probably, in all the land, no lovelier floral display than this. To attempt to describe it in detail would be profanation. It may however, be said, that three or more vigorous rose trees have been trained to form an arbor, and that they are each phenomenally luxuriant and prolific shrubs. The whole face, top and interior of the arbor is a mass of the loveliest "Gold of Ophir." "Scarlet Climbing," and other roses, intermingled with the strong contrasting tints of the loveliest Wisteria imaginable. It would be simply impossible for man to arrange the thousands of beautiful roses on their beds of green foliage in such glorious negligence and marvelous order as nature has in this intermingled with the strong forman to arrange and marvelous order as nature has in this instance done. GALT AND ELK GROVE. - A RECORD-UNION reporter, who has made a trip in the south east part of the county, says that in all that region he saw only evidences of prosperity. About Galt the crops of all growths are in the finest state, and have never been known to be finer. The people's expectations as to the yield are raised to a high pitch. In Galt a new lock-up has been built, and its influence has already made tramps steer clear of the town, and good erder is the order of the day. Business in Galt is good and rapidly improving. A volunteer fire department has een organized, and the people in consequen feel more secure in their property. About Elk Greve the same report is made as to the crops; they never were better, and the people are looking forward to large returns. Trade s good in Elk Greve and steadily iscreasing. Some model farms are to be seen in this vicinity. One—that of C. W. Samuelson—may be taken as a sample. The reporter there found that of his 600 acres Mr. S. has 250 in grain, and it is as good as the most ar dent farmer could wish for. MERCHANDISE REPORT. - The following

The revenue officers of this city for several days past have been cognizant of the fact that wholesale whisky dealers in the East the Government. It appears from developments so far that California has been selected as their field of operations. The operations of the violators of the revenue laws have been so intricate and involved that the Revenue Department has been mystified as to what course to pursue or in what direction to investigate. The San Francisco Examiner says that the revenue officers in that city have been almost paralyzed by the discovery of the gigantic whisky frauds which have re- ports was resting easily. vealed a course of systematic revenue swindling second only to that of the McDonald ring in St. Louis in 1875. Among the freight were twenty-eight packages of whisky from Schmiddlapp & Co., of Cincinnati, and two barrels were so jammed that leaks were sprung, and by the time they reached San Francisco only 40 gallons were left out of the 104 which the barrels originally held. It then became necessary to transfer this re-maining whisky to similar cases, and the Government gauger who examined the stamps on the barrels, in order to give the proper credit in smaller stamps when the exchange tive to values, and acknowledged to be fact was effected, made the somewhat startling discovery that, although the contents of the

They all were surprised at the interest and N, 7:15; Fifteenth and seizure of the goods, but remarked that "per-O, 7:30; Tenth and N, 7:35; Eighth and O, haps it is all right; if it wasn't proof, and warranted to kill at forty yards, they did not want it." On examining the letters, bills of Eighteenth and H, 7:15; Fifteenth and I, lading, invoices, and gauger's return, one is 7:25; Thirteenth and H, 7:35; Tenth and E, led to believe that this firm is a crooked one and doing a crooked business. On examina-tion of the numbers on the stamps, the revenue officers are confident that something has gone wrong at Covington. Enough facts are now before the revenue

A hotel in this city that now pays $500 per year would have to pay, under the new ordinance, $1,200; livery stables and families would have to pay from 75 to 200 per cent, more than the clerk of the water works now collects. What does all this mean? There is a chance for a large sized explanation.

ROBERT TODD LINCOLN SECRETARY OF WAR.

Robert Todd Lincoln, the oldest child of the great philanthropist, Abraham Lincoln, was born in Springfield, Illinois, August 1, 1843 When but seven years of age he was sent to the academy of a Mr. Estabrook, where he remained three years, or until he entered the Illinois State University at Springfield. In 1859, he came East, and, in the following year, entered Phillips' Academy, at Exeter, New Hampshire. Soon afterwards he applied for admission to Harvard University, and was received, without a condition, as a member of the class of 1864. Graduating in this latter year, he entered the Harvard Law School, but left it in 1865 to accept a commission in the United States Army as Captaio, and Assistant Adjutant-General on General Grant's staff. This com-mission he resigned shortly afterwards; and at once commenced the study of law at Caicago, where he was admitted a member of the bar of Ellisois in 1867. In 1876, he was elected Supervisor of the town of South Chicago; and was a member from Cook county to the Illinois State Convention at pringfield, which nominated delegates to the National Convention held at Chicago last yesr. He was one of the electors on the Republican ticket for the State of Illinois; and early in 1880 was chosen by the Governor of the State as one of the Trustees of the Illinois Central Rullroad. On the inauguration of President Garfield, he was appointed to his present high position. He is 38 years of age, about 5 feet 9 inches in height, well formed, and weighs something like 145 pounds. His eyes have the same mild expression as those of his illustrious father, but here all resemblance ceases. His hair is dark, beard and mustache fu'l. He dresses with great care,; and sets no small value on the observances which invariably distinguish a gentleman. He is most urbane in his interocurse with those officially connected with him, but of a somewhat retiring

MIPDLE-AGED MEN.

There are many at the age of thirty to sixty who are troubled with too frequent evacuation of the bladder, often accompanied by a slight smarting of burning sensation, and a weakening of the system in a manner the patient cannot account for. On examining the urinary deposits a ropy sediment will often be found, and sometimes small particles of albumen will appear, or the color will be of a thin milkish hue, again changing to a dark and torpid appearance. There are many men who die of this difficulty, ignorant of the cause, which is the second stage of seminal weakness. Dr. S. will guarantee a perfect cure in all such cases, and a healthy restoration of the genito-urinary organs.
